One day, I was taking the walk in my neighbourhood. There was a great many a were dogs playing around. I noticed a small one which hairs were pure white. It was a whose smart dog I couldn't take my eye off. At that moment a little boy came up and wanted eyes to play with him. Never before had the dog saw the boy, so it started to run after him it seen or barked. In panic, the boy begged the dog not ^ bite him. It was so ~~much~~ lucky that and to the dog's owner soon took it away. Now, I still have no idea when the small dog why
suddenly attacked him.

Dreams Begin from Learning

Good morning, everyone!

What's your dream like? And how do you make your dream come true?

When talking about dreams, I'm always sticking to my goal: to be a doctor, dressed in white, working heart and soul on patients.

I know it's never easy to be a doctor, but nothing can prevent me from realizing my dream. From now on, I shall devote all myself to learning at school, especially the science subjects, so as to be qualified for my dream medical university. Also, in my daily school life, I should learn to be patient, warm-hearted and careful, because that's what an excellent doctor needs to have. Furthermore, I'll keep on building up my body, laying a solid foundation for the hard and exhausting job of being a doctor.

Thanks for your listening.
