Sports and Me

As a sports lover, I am passionate about various forms of exercise. Among them, jogging stands out as my favorite.

Initially, what attracted me was that it welcomes everyone, regardless of age or gender. All it takes is a pair of trainers and a relaxed mind. Gradually, I have realized, apart from its convenience, jogging has shaped me both physically and mentally. Not only has it become a lifelong habit, but it also serves as a source of relief during tough times, reminding me of the value of perseverance and optimism.

Looking ahead, I know there are countless sports waiting to be explored, but jogging will always hold a special place in my heart. I look forward to continuing this journey, which enriches my life.

Curious, Sadhana followed Mrs. Acharya. They entered the kitchen. There, on the counter, was a beautiful vanilla and mango cake with bright letters in the centre that read, "Happy Birthday, Sadhana". Sadhana's eyes widened in surprise. "You baked this for me?" Mrs. Acharya nodded, her smile gorgeous. "Yes, dear." Sadhana's eyes were filled with tears as she hugged Mrs. Acharya tightly. "Thank you so much. You even remember the flavors I love! This really means so much to me."

Mr. Acharya came in, holding a bottle of freshly made mango juice. "Drink to Sadhana and to making wonderful memories, even when far from home." They all clinked their glasses together and Sadhana took her first bite of the cake. It was very similar to the one she had every year and yet, there was a new kind of joy attached to it. It wasn't the same as celebrating with her family, but the love and care from the Acharyas made her feel cherished and supported. "This cake is amazing," Sadhana said with a smile, her eyes still misty. "Thank you for this." Even though Sadhana was away from her family, she had a memorable and heartwarming birthday.
