第一节 (满分 15 分)

Dear Peter,

I'm Li Hua, studying in Class one, Grade two. Seeing that you are in need of volunteers for environmental protection from your appealing poster, I'm writing to apply for the position.

I'm fully convinced that I possess enough qualifications to be the required volunteer. First of all, I normally participate in a variety of beneficial activities to preserve our environment, which makes me more experienced than others. Besides, I succeeded in organizing a series of rewarding activities, including Saving Water, Green Travel and so on, which equipped me with enough knowledge and experience to be a qualified volunteer. I'd appreciate it if you could take my application into consideration. I'm available for an interview at any time.

Looking forward to your reply.

yours,
Li Hua

第二节 (满分 25 分)

Everyone in the room became serious and sad. The boys dropped their heads, looking heartbroken. "It's unfair." Ike cried, tears in his eyes. Yes, it was unfair to the boys. They just wanted to have a little playmate, one that could see and run as well as any other dog. I shouldn't have disappointed them in this way. But...the poor dog. Having hesitated for a little while, finally, I made a difficult decision. I walked to them, petted the dog, and then suggested giving it back and taking another healthy and lively little puppy.

Surprisingly, the boys refused to give the little puppy back. Sam held Rosy tightly in his arms and rubbed its fur. "Mommy, it's not fair for the little dog. We should do something.

We should love and care for her together.” Ike looked straight into my eyes, begging to keep Rosy eagerly. The other boys joined immediately. It was then that I realized I had misunderstood them. Never had I expected my little boys had such great kindness. I was completely moved and nodded my head, “Yes, we’ll keep it.”

听力文本:

Text 1

M: Amy, do you feel like a cold drink?

W: I’d like a tomato juice. And can I have a piece of that cake?

M: OK. I’ll have some too, with an apple juice. You find us a table and I’ll queue up to buy it.

Text 2

W: Jack has some of the qualities, but he’s not exactly what we need.

M: What do you mean?

W: For this project we need someone who is just as tough, but a lot more patient.

Text 3

W: Can you drive at top speed, please? I have a flight to catch at 2:30.

M: I’m afraid traffic at this time of the day is heavy. You should take the subway.

W: Well, can you drop me off at the nearest station, then?

M: Sure.

Text 4

M: Do you want to come to the movies with Jeff and me, Donna? We’re going to see Spider-Man: Homecoming.

W: Uh, I don’t really want to see that movie. Besides, I’m too tired to go anywhere. Say hi to Jeff, though.

Text 5

M: Miss, just calm down. Tell me who you’re here to see.

W: I have a job interview with Mr. Beringer, but my car broke down on the way, and I was supposed to be here 15 minutes ago!

Text 6

W: Star Suites. Vera Simpson speaking.

M: This is Alan Johnson. ⑥I’d like to book two rooms for three nights.

W: I’m happy to help. ⑦We have a special on our business suites from December 23rd to 25th.

M: ⑦That sounds attractive, but we need to check in about a week before that. ⑥And we only need a couple of simple double rooms.

W: OK. We’ve got plenty of those. When will you arrive?

M: ⑦We’ll be arriving late on the 16th, but our checkout will be early on the morning of the 19th.

W: Very well, Mr. Johnson. We’re open twenty-four hours a day, so you’re welcome to check in at any time.

Text 7

W: We’re planning a trip for right after we graduate, and I’m asking everybody where they would like to go most. Any thoughts?

M: I've always wanted to go somewhere hot like Hawaii. I'd love to just lie on the beach, have a drink... just relax, although I suppose that staying in one place might get boring after a while. ⑧How about a trip through Europe?

W: You're not the first person to say that. ⑧To be honest, I kind of agree with you. If we were to go to the Bahamas, say, I wouldn't complain. ⑧But Europe sounds more attractive.

M: Well, as it happens, I spoke with a bunch of our friends last night. All of them began by saying the same thing we did about beaches and stuff. In the end, everyone agreed that they'd rather have a more diverse experience.

W: Well, I think we have our destination. Now we just need to get our plane tickets.

M: Hold your horses (别忙, 耐心点). ⑨We need to calculate the cost first.

Text 8

M: ⑩⑫So, are you enjoying the performance so far?

W: Well, you must admit the clothes are beautiful and the set is wonderful, ⑩but the acting is a bit boring. What do you think?

M: I think you're a bit particular. The actor in the lead role is very professional. I suppose the music could be a bit better, though.

W: Do you know anyone in the play?

M: ⑪Actually, the woman playing Ophelia is an old classmate of mine.

W: Really? Is that why you wanted to come to the play?

M: That's only a part of it. I absolutely admire this director. Every play he works on turns out great. I've seen quite a few other plays that he directed. They are really wonderful. By the way, after the play, there is a big party for the actors and their friends. My friend has invited us. Do you want to go?

W: Sure. ⑫Oh, look! They are weakening the lights. I think we should go back to our seats for the second half of the play.

M: You are right.

Text 9

W: Do you think I should go to college, Mike?

M: Of course, Brenda! Why not?

W: ⑬Well, my friend Landon started his own computer software business right out of high school. He didn't go to college, and he made a million dollars!

M: OK, congratulations to him. But that success story is not common. ⑮People should receive as much education as they could.

W: But college is so expensive nowadays. ⑭When my brother Jason went to school, his fees were maybe twenty thousand dollars a year. His same school is charging twice that amount now!

M: That's nothing! New York University costs much more!

W: See! That's what I mean! Is it really worth the money?

M: ⑮Listen, I agree that education is too expensive, but college life is such a beautiful part of one's life. Besides, students can borrow money from the bank.

W: But if everyone suddenly can't pay back the money, then we're all influenced!

Text 10

W: Right in front of the Minneapolis Central Library, a row of green bikes sits parked in a special stand. Each bike is designed with the logo "Nice Ride"—the name of the city's bike-share program.

Nice Ride bikes are a lot like the library books that people come here to borrow. ⑰ To rent a bike, you simply use your membership card at a Nice Ride bike station. Members can rent one of 1,200 bikes from 138 stations throughout Minnesota's (明尼苏达州) largest city. People use the Nice Ride bikes to go to work, to go out on business, or just to enjoy the city's many bike paths.

The rise of bike-share programs like Nice Ride is encouraging more people than ever to choose biking over driving. ⑱ Increasing gas prices and concerns about the environment have also gotten people to travel by bike. Bike-share systems are found around the world in cities like London, Paris, Barcelona, and Melbourne, Australia. ⑲ The largest program with 70,000 bikes is in Wuhan, China. To make roads friendlier to non-motorists, the US Department of Transportation has invested more than a billion dollars in cycling in recent years. The money went toward building thousands of miles of on-street bike lanes (道路内自行车车道) called greenways.
